

Fossils on public lands belong to all Americans and are rare. It is important that a few simple rules be followed. When collecting invertebrate and botanical fossils, collect reasonable amounts and only for personal use. The general public is not allowed to collect vertebrate fossils. A permit is required for scientists working on public lands to collect vertebrate fossils. Always respect public and private property. Report illegal activities to the proper authorities.

